

French fund selectors unite to form society

By Jessica Beard / 30 Mar, 2018

A group of French fund selectors have formed a new society called the Société Française des Sélectionneurs de Fonds (SF2).

Spearheading the initiative is Philippe Sarica, head of fund selection at La Finance Emotionnelle, who will act as chairman for the association.

The society was formed with the aim of creating a forum to increase discussion between fund selectors and publicising the role of fund selectors.

The group is set to create a guide for best practice, as well as providing training modules. There are also plans to host regular events concerning fund selection.

The group will be exclusively made up of professionals working in fund selection, multi-management, research and education from asset management companies, entrepreneurial firms, subsidiaries of banking groups or insurance companies, consulting firms, financial analysis companies as well as universities and schools.

The society aims to improve the professional know-how of its members through an exchange of ideas and experiences during conferences.

Other members include: Benoit de Brie of DNCA Finance, who joins as treasurer; Aurélia Caruso, head of asset allocation at Scala Patrimoine, who will act as general secretary; Jean-Christophe Cotta, who is the founder of Allocation & Sélection; and, Sandrine Vincelot-Guiet, head of selection at Vega IM. Both Cotta and Vincelot-Guiet will act as vice-presidents.
